

---

William Evenson is an administrator and physics professor at Utah Valley State College, where he moved in 2004 upon retiring from BYU. During his thirty-four years at BYU Evenson was Professor of Physics, Dean of General Education, Dean of Physical and Mathematical Sciences, and Associate Academic Vice President. He and his wife, Nancy, live in Provo, and keep in touch with their five children and a growing number of grandchildren spread across the United States.

Duane E. Jeffery is Professor of Integrative Biology at Brigham Young University. He has published professionally in various biological journals and on matters of Mormonism and science. He has received numerous teaching awards at BYU including Honors Professor of the Year and the Karl G. Maeser Distinguished Teaching Award. He serves as a member of the Board of Directors of the National Center for Science Education. He and his wife, Kaye, live in American Fork, Utah.